

THE ARTEMISIA

A documentary photo magazine
for the University of Nevada, Reno
ISSUE I, VOL. CVI, WINTER 2005

NEVADA BOXING: A Rookie's Tale

INSIDE

Sororities and fraternities gathered for their annual formal dance. Photo essay from the 2004 All Greek Ball.

Drum major Aldie Lopez leads The Pride of the Sierra marching band in his final performance.

WONDERLAND

Snow covers Manzanita Lake
students returned from break, lasted for more than a month.

Friday, Jan. 31. The Truckee Meadows received almost three feet of snow during the winter vacation. When we greeted by ten foot snow piles in the parking lots, icy sidewalks and weeks of cold weather. The snow
Photo by David Calvert

CONTROVERSIAL

Filmmaker Michael Moore
26th stop on his 60-city S
event, 250 protestors, org addresses a sold-out crowd of 9,800 at Lawlor Events Center on Wednesday, Oct. 13. His visit to Reno was the ker Uprising Tour. The appearance created controversy on campus as well as in the community. During the ized by the College Republicans rallied against Moore.

Photo by David Calvert

TABLE OF CONTENTS |

ISSUE I, VOL. CVI,
WINTER 2005

Editor's Note

Dear Reader,

So what is this magazine?

The Artemisia, formerly the student yearbook of the Associated Students of the University of Nevada has changed its format.

As a formal yearbook, The Artemisia saw sales plummet in the past few years, including numbers as low as 150 books in 2003. Less than one percent of the students purchased the book.

Therefore, I am transforming the publication into a documentary photography magazine.

A traditional yearbook isn't a viable option on this campus. Using documentary photography, we can cover the events and people of this campus, and by making the publication free, we can get those stories out to more students.

In addition to the magazine, the images you see here will be displayed online at:

www.photojournalismatnevada.com

Photojournalism@Nevada is a student organization dedicated to the advancement of photojournalism at UNR.

I'd like to thank everyone who helped with this product especially my staff, Amy Koeckes and the ASUN publications' board, The Nevada Sagebrush and photojournalism instructor Ira Gostin.

I hope you've enjoyed looking at this magazine and are looking forward to our next issue later this spring. If you have any story suggestions, questions or concerns, please contact me at calvertd@unr.nevada.edu.

Editor David Calvert is a sophomore journalism major and president of Photojournalism@Nevada.

Contents

Wild Art: Manzanita Lake.....2-3
photo by David Calvert

Wild Art: Michael Moore.....4-5
photo by David Calvert

Table of Contents.....6

Drum Major Aldie Lopez.....7-9
photos by David Calvert

Winter Commencement.....10-13
photos by David Calvert, Kevin Clifford and Greg Janess

Cops vs. Frats.....14-15
photos by David Calvert and Kevin Clifford

Greek Ball.....16-19
photos by Samantha Clemens

Cover: Nevada Boxing.....20-23
photos by David Calvert

WAC Volleyball.....24-25
photos by Samantha Clemens

Wild Art: John Edwards.....26-27
photos by David Calvert

COVER PHOTO: Nevada Boxer Thomas Gennaro outside of a retired gym on Ralston Avenue. Photo by David Calvert, special thanks to Casey Bieroth and Ira Gostin.

Ben Sumlin, Emma Garrard, Steve Ambrusz, Nathan Slinker, Hitomi Koide, Katie Brletic and Zander Smith also contributed to The Artemisia.

STORIES

ABOVE: Pride of the Sierra Marching Band Drum Major Aldie Lopez puts on his uniform before the final 2004 football game on Saturday, Nov. 29. LEFT: Lopez talks with fellow Drum Major Carmella Cao before Saturday morning's rehearsal.

DRUM MAJOR

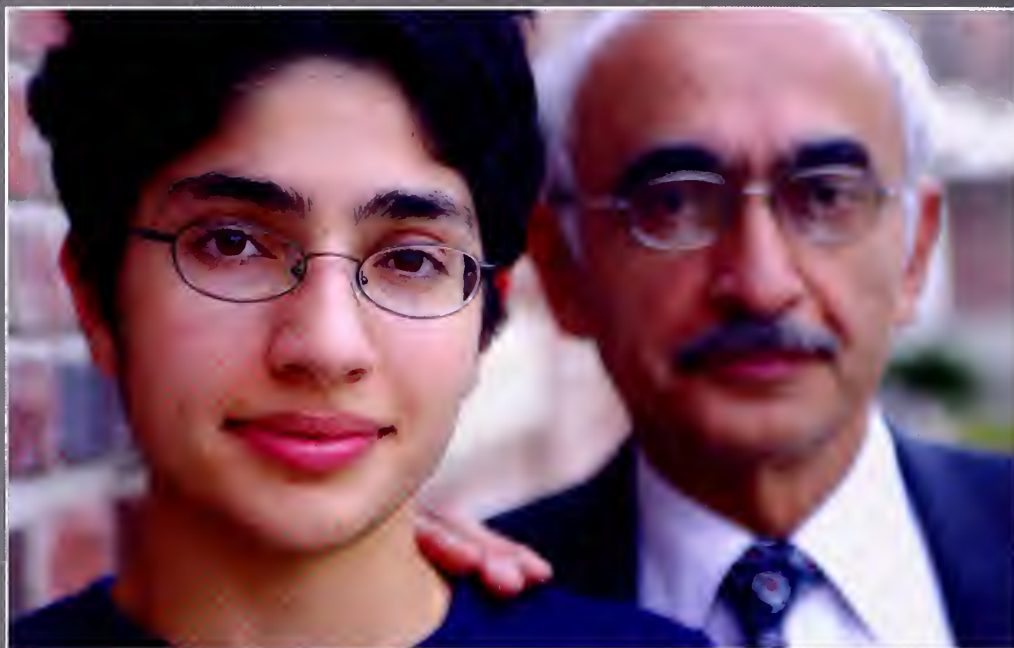

The evening snowfall cancelled Saturday's senior Aldie Lopez warmed up the band routine was different, The Pride of the S morning's band rehearsal before the Nevada, Boise State football game. In his final performance as Drum Major, indoors, then braved the cold to watch Nevada lose to the nationally ranked Broncos. Although the morning still managed to play its final show—for the fans, the team and for Lopez. Photos by David Calvert

TOP LEFT: Lopez leads the band in its post-game performance. "The last couple of home games were so cold, the ice and the snow, you could see your breath," said Lopez. "I've never been that cold in my life. I had on long-johns, a couple pairs of socks, Under Armor, a T-shirt, a long-sleeve shirt, two pairs of gloves and my uniform. TOP RIGHT: Lopez listens to the percussion section as they warm-up. ABOVE: Lopez and Drum Major Devon Stuart clear snow from band seating section using metal folding chairs. LEFT: Students rehearse inside the band room before the game. "I am going to miss [the band] some days, I mean I've been at every single home game for five years. Next year, hearing stuff I wrote—it'll be hard for the first few games. I'll be nostalgic."

ABOVE: 2004 winter commencement senior scholar Mary Etezadi and her father Dr. Mehdi Etezadi pose for a portrait. Maryam and her father are from the university's college of engineering. She graduate with honors, Summa Cum Laude. RIGHT: University President John Lilley presents Veronica Chavez with her bachelors degree in international business. BELOW: Graduates wait on the floor of Lawlor Events Center for the annual commencement ceremony to begin.

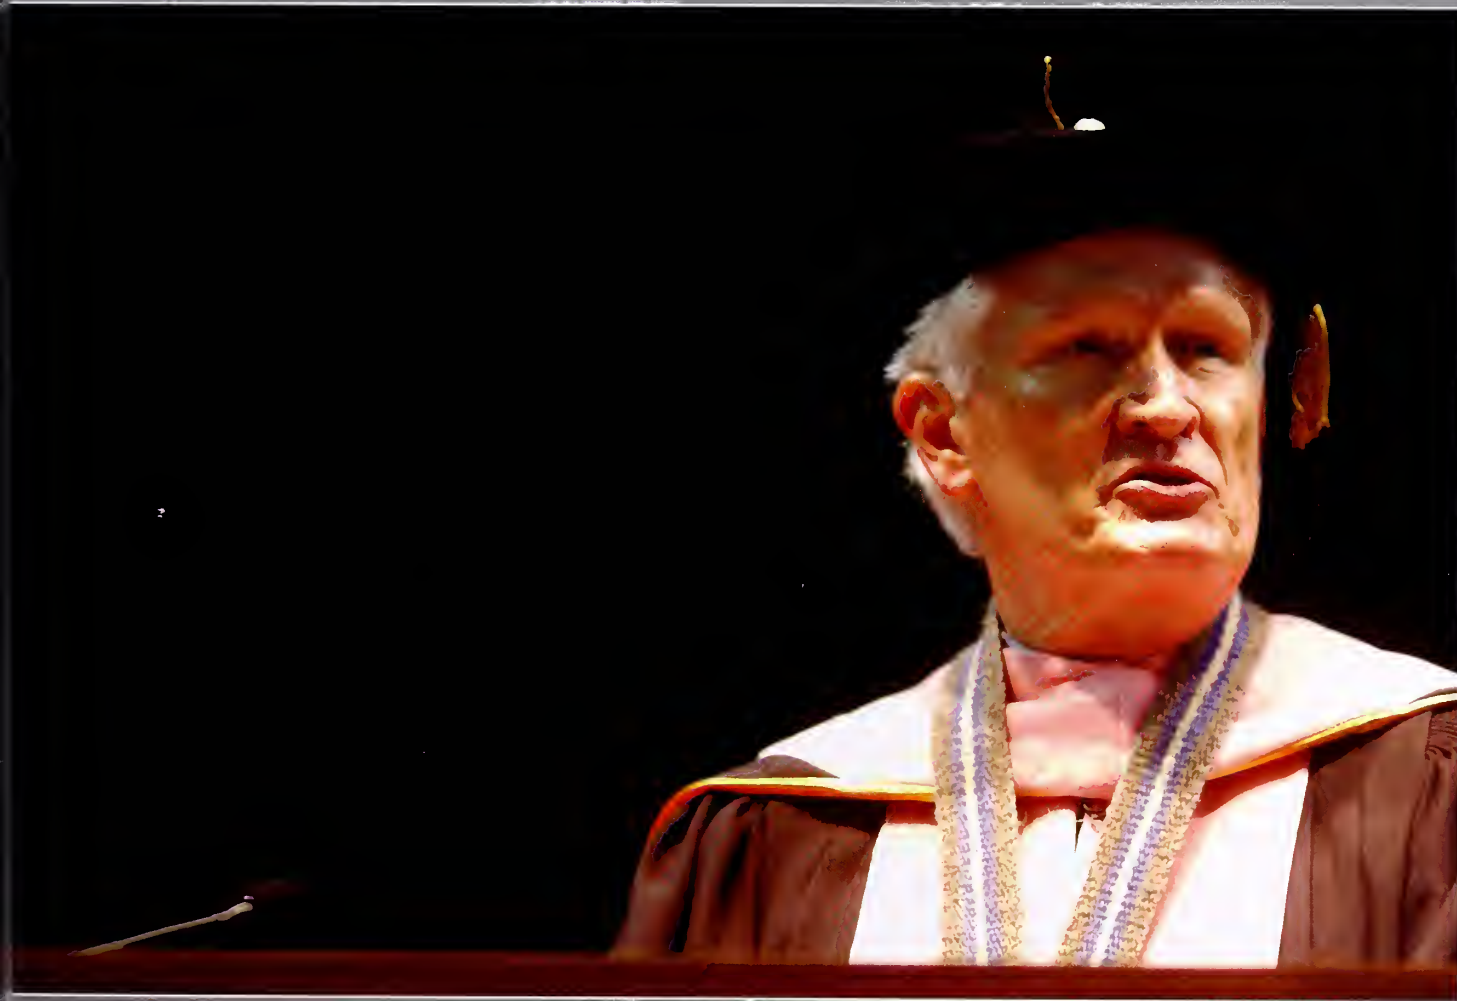

WINTER GRADUATION |

At 8 a.m., with
Lawlor Events
Reno gave o

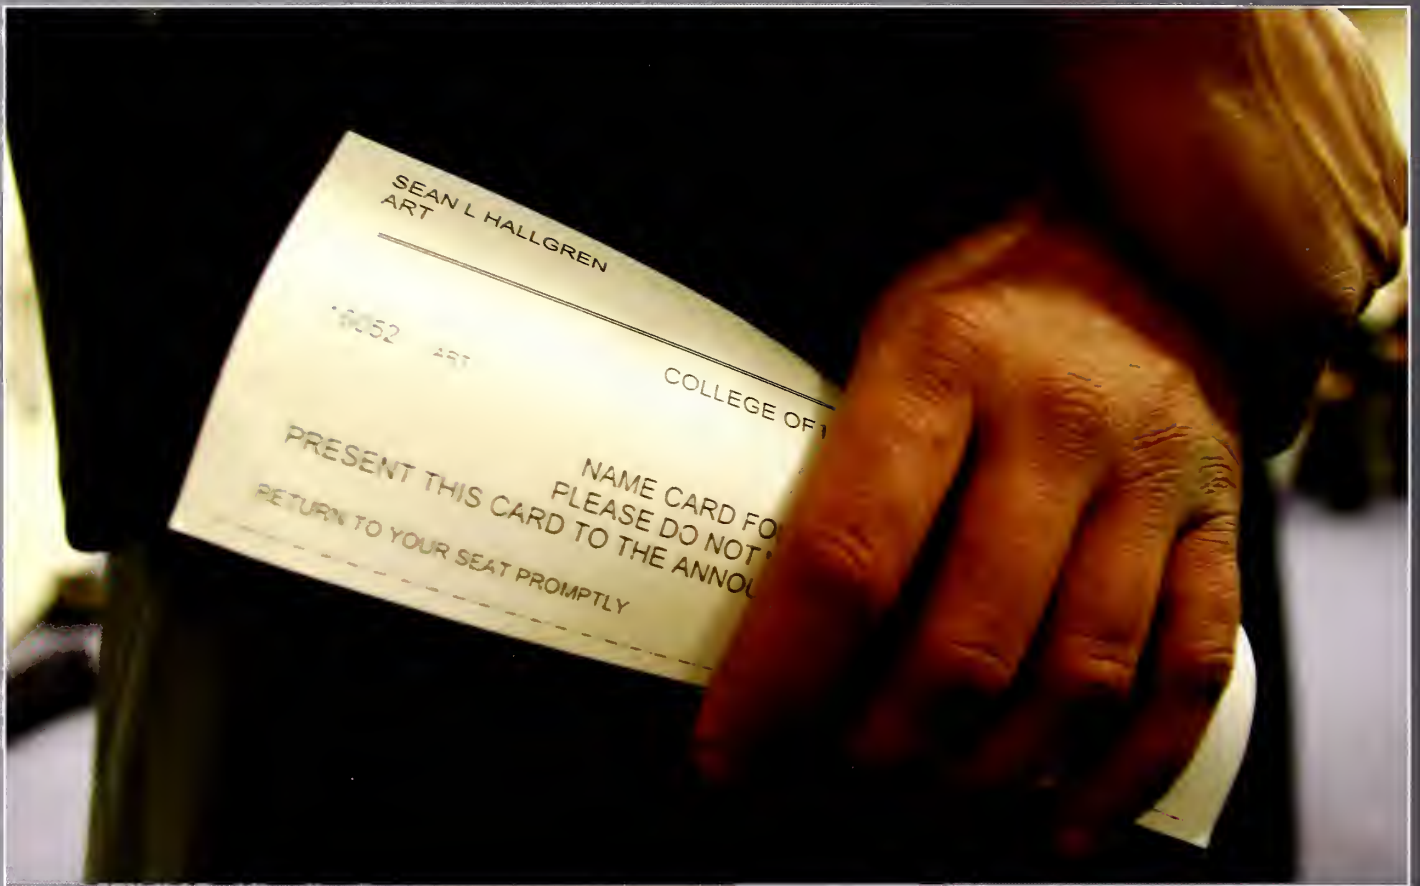

LEFT: Journalism graduates, Natalie Savidge, left, and Lindsay Hahn, right, listen to the 2004 winter commencement ceremony. BELOW: President Lilley speaks during the opening ceremonies of the graduation.

ap and gown draped over their shoulders, students marched from the Brian J. Whalen parking garage to center for the annual winter commencement. During the 2003-2004 school year, the University of Nevada, more than 2,000 degrees.

Photos by David Calvert and Kevin Clifford

ABOVE: Sean Hallgren holds the name card he must give to the announcer before walking across the stage. FAR ABOVE: Hallgren watches and waits as other graduates walk across the stage during the ceremony. Hallgren would receive his bachelor's degree in art. RIGHT: Hallgren grabs a guest's keys early Saturday morning in the El Dorado valet office before retrieving their vehicle.

UP ALL NIGHT

Students were required to be at Layton parking shift at the El Dorado Hotel in Art. He has worked graveyard full time

LEFT: Hallgren and his sister, Monique Baron, look at a video she made of him during the graduation. BELOW: Hallgren drives a customers car in the El Dorado Hotel Casino garage. FAR BELOW: A tired Hallgren reflects on the day, college.

Events Center by 8:30 a.m. to take part in the 2004 winter commencement. Sean Hallgren worked a valet-casino from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. before attending the ceremony where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree. He has lived in Reno for the last three years and gone to college full time for four and a half.

Photos by Greg Janess

COPS VS. FRATS

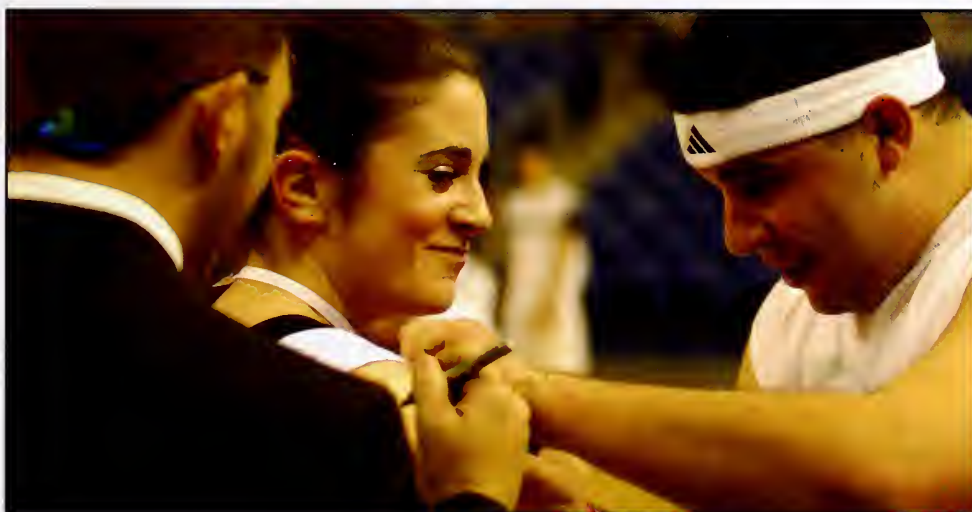

Members of the University's Police and Fraternity teams compete in a basketball game. The frat boys beat the cops 10-0. The game was organized by UNR Police.

RIGHT: From left, Interfraternity Council members Jimmy Gleich, Orbie Ottey and Brad Naughton put their hands into the pregame huddle. BELOW LEFT: Police Officer Dulcie Lilly high-fives teammate Warren Conley during pregame introductions. BELOW RIGHT: Officer Eric James and Sigma Alpha Epsilon member Shaheen Moezzi chase after a loose ball.

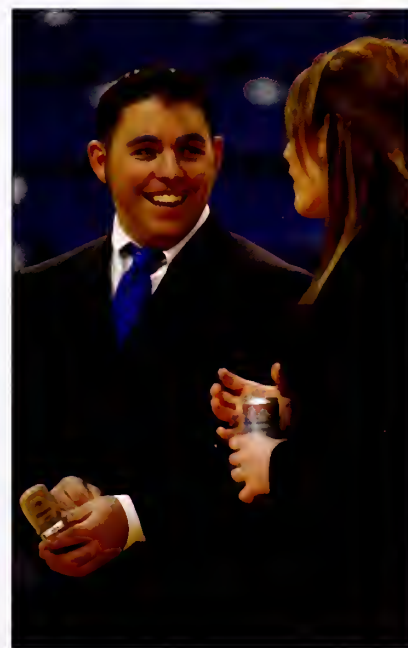

Services and the Interfraternity Council met on Sunday, Jan. 20 for the inaugural Cops vs. Frats charity basketball game 59-37, but more importantly, raised more than $8,000 for the Reno-based Safe Embrace charity. The Department Officer Warren Conley.

Photos by David Calvert and Kevin Clifford

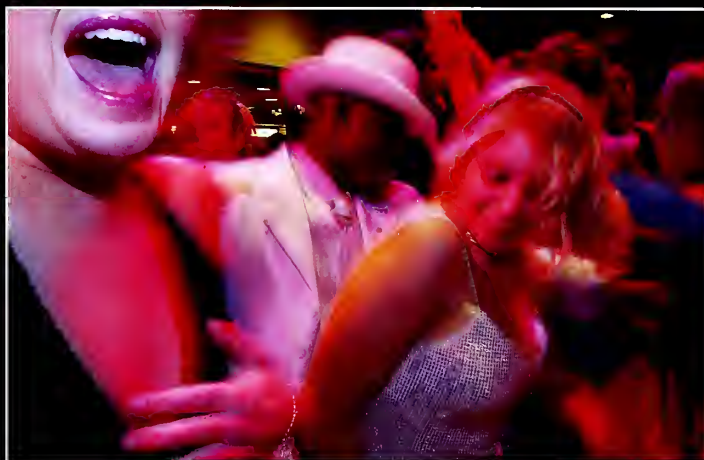

ABOVE: Samantha Goldstein has her shirt autographed by Interfraternity Council President Jimmy Gleich and Frats' assistant coach David Badley. BELOW LEFT: IFC team members from left, Brad Naughton, Justin Molnar, Ryan Dyess and Birk Roseman, sit in the locker room before the charity game. BELOW RIGHT: David Badley talks with IFC head coach Sarah Bieski while the team warms up.

ALL GREEK ALL NIGHT

RIGHT: Olumide Ogundimu, of Sigma Phi Epsilon and his date, Ashley Faber, dance during the ball.

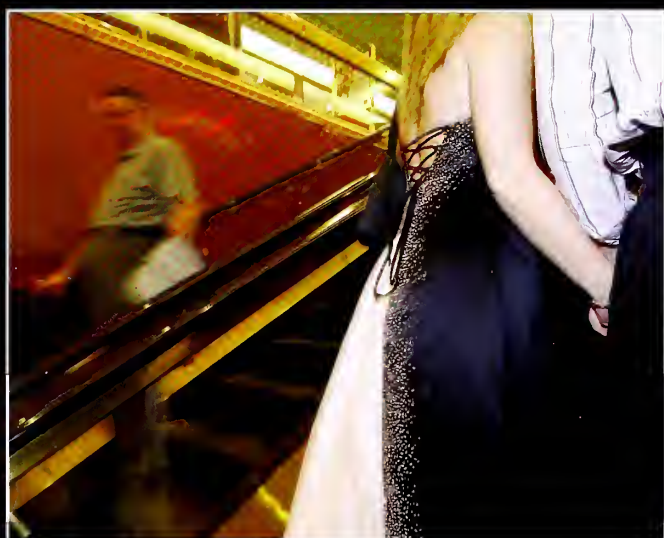

Photographer Samantha Clemens followed a group of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority sisters to the annual All Greek Ball Thursday, Sept. 4. Fraternities and sororities gathered to celebrate the accomplishments of the Greeks, including the presentation of the award for Nevada Chapter of Excellence. Photos by Samantha Clemens

LEFT: President of Kappa Alpha Theta, Sarah Sciarani, left, is embraced by her younger sister, Stephanie Sciarani at the All Greek Ball. The house just won the Nevada Chapter of Excellence award. ABOVE: Theta seniors Angeline Peterson, left, and Kelli Nakagawara dance during the ball. FAR ABOVE: Senior Bryana Shirley, left, and Belinda Suwe, right, prepare in the bathroom of the Theta house for the night's formal dance.

Guys and girls started the night by getting ready. Some spent hours in front of the mirror fixing their hair and make-up, and some spent hours trying to tie their own tie. But when they got to Harrah's Hotel Casino in Downtown Reno, members of the University of Nevada, Reno fraternities and sororities spent the night dancing at the annual All Greek Ball. Photos by Samantha Clemens

RIGHT: Andrea Delucia, left, and senior Vanessa Montecerin cheer with fellow Delta Gammas during the awards ceremony at the dance. BELOW: Kappa Alpha Theta sophomore Trisha Hansen holds hands with her boyfriend while riding the escalator on their way to the All Greek Ball.

RIGHT: Senior Antonio Trillo dances with an unidentified Pi Phi during the All Greek Ball.

| DANCE THE NIGHT AWAY

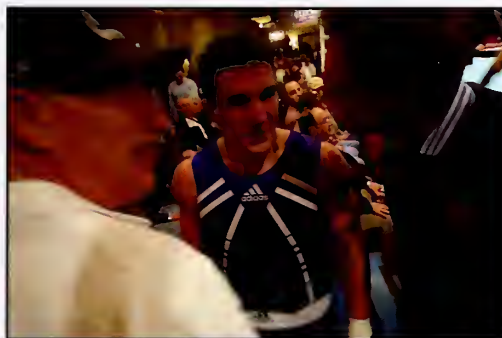

ABOVE: Unidentified students dance Thursday night, Sept. 10 at the All Greek Ball. LEFT: Phil Erwin of Sigma Nu cheers after his house won the philanthropy award.

LEFT: Nevada boxer David Schacter shadow boxes with coach Greg Rice during practice Thursday, Feb. 9. Schacter beat his UNLV opponent Lyle Nixon in their bout on Feb. 2 at the El Dorado Hotel Casino. ABOVE: Nevada fans cheer on John Nielson Friday night. From left, Nielson's Lambda Chi fraternity brothers, John Whitehill, Ron Lance and Matt Sinner. RIGHT: Naval Academy boxer Nic Tawil punches Nevada Boxer, Daigo Moki during Friday night's action.

Cheering fans filled the ballroom at the El Dorado Hotel Casino Friday night, Feb. 4. They were there to watch a series of amateur bouts against fighters from the Air Force Academy, the University of California-Berkeley and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. Against the instate rival Rebels, Nevada went 3-0.

ABOVE: John Nielson, center, talks to coach Mike Martino, right after Nielson's fight against UNLV boxer Cocoro. Nielson won the decision in the 165-pound match-up. BELOW: Nevada Heavyweight John Lorman fights Air Force Academy boxer Ian Tuznik. Lorman lost the fight.

the Nevada boxing team compete in a United States Naval Academy and the
Photos by David Calvert

FIGHT NIGHT

ABOVE: Gennaro and his teammates warm-up in the ring before practice Thursday, Feb. 10. RIGHT: Gennaro puts on his hand wraps before practice.

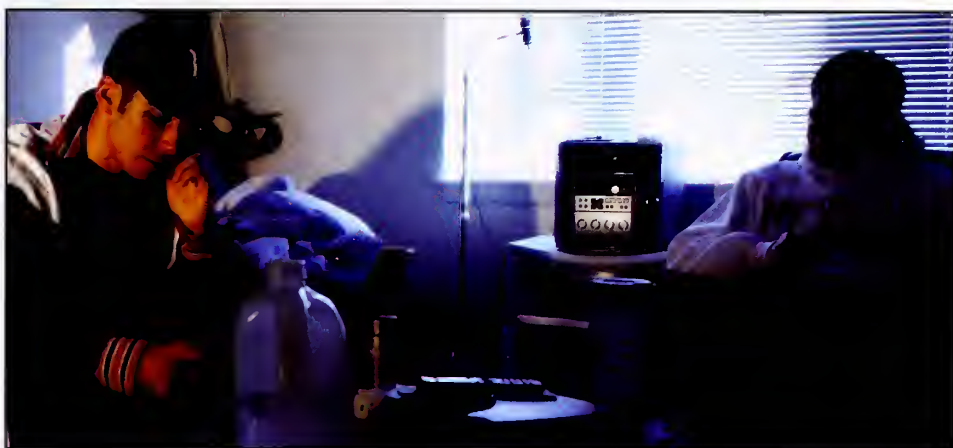

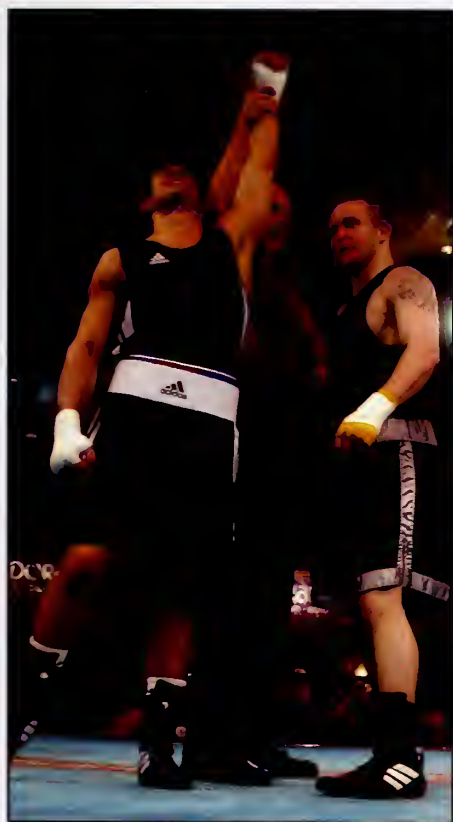

ROOKIE'S ROAD

Going into his match Friday to learn how to box," but Feb. 10 and then out slugged his U

BELOW: Gennaro, right, fights Mike O'Hair Friday, Feb. 2.
 FAR BELOW. Gennaro talks on the phone in his Sigma Alpha Epsilon room while teammate and frat brother Matt Johnson hangs out. FAR BELOW, LEFT: Gennaro celebrates after his victory over O'Hair. The wine helped Nevada go undefeated against UNLV on the fight card.

Feb. 2, Nevada boxer Thomas Gennaro was winless at 0-3. "I just began fighting," Gennaro said. "I'm still trying at the El Dorado may have been his coming out. The feel good story of night, the rookie Gennaro out boxed University of Nevada-Las Vegas opponent Mike O'Hair.

Photos by David Calvert

HEARTBREAK

With the support of a home town crowd on Nov. 21. The Wolf Pack played second round matches. The Wolf Pack fell 3-1, losing the matches.

LEFT: Salaia Salave'a, front and teammate Kellie Burton, rear, cry after the 3-1 lose to Hawaii in the WAC Tournament Championship. Despite the loss, Nevada went on to earn an NCAA tournament bid.

LEFT: Members of the Nevada Volleyball team, from left, Carly Sorenson, Lindsay Holda, Karen Adams, Christine Harms, Tristin Adams, Wolf Pack mascot Alphie and Salaia Salave'a listen to the "National Anthem" before the championship game of the WAC Tournament in the Virginia Street Gym on Sunday, Nov. 21. ABOVE LEFT: Teal Ericson spikes the ball against Hawaii in the championship game. RIGHT: Young Nevada fans show their support by painting the team member numbers on their backs and spelling out Wolf Pack across their chests.

Nevada advanced to the championship game of the Western Athletic Conference Tournament on Sunday, but lost to and undefeated Hawaii. In the two prior meetings, Hawaii beat Nevada 3-2. In the championship, the scores of 30-21, 28-30, 30-22, and 30-27.

Photos by Samantha Clemens

The 2004 Presidential Election on Nov. 2, turned the University of Nevada, Reno campus into a center for presidential campaign activity. Sen. John Edwards, D-N. Car., speaks to a crowd of supporters Monday, Nov. 13 on the campus. Students, faculty and community members, gathered to hear the senator speak.

political activity and opinions. Vice the main quad. More than 4,000 stu-
Photo by David Calvert

| IN CLOSING...

The Artemisia is a documentary photography magazine dedicated to covering the community of the University of Nevada, Reno.

We are committed to relevant and visually entertaining coverage of our subjects.

The Artemisia's staff will maintain the highest ethical standards in photojournalism and journalism. Our pictures must be accurate.

Digital altering of images must not change the meaning of the photo. Minimal dodging, burning and color balancing is acceptable, as long as the subject matter does not change.

The Artemisia will provide educational opportunities for those interested in photojournalism. The staff will strive to advance photojournalism within the University of Nevada, Reno community

Nevada center Kevinn Pinkney wins the tip off against Boise State's Tezarray Banks on Saturday, Jan. 15. The Wolf Pack beat the Broncos 67-57.

Photo by David Calvert

Special thanks to the members of Photojournalism@Nevada for their help with this publication. For more photos and galleries visit:

www.photojournalismatnevada.com